***Quizzers can 'buzz' in at any point AFTER the Quiz Master has stated when the question will begin (by saying: "Question:"). If they buzz in before the entire question has been read, they will be required to give not only the answer, but also the missing portion of the question the Quiz Master began. This is to help keep quick buzzers from simply quoting verses to get right answers, but to force them to understand both the memorized words and the meaning of the verse.

“Even if just coming to watch... helpful to have read (out loud) the entire chapter about three times (and bring a copy with you) so you can be familiar with what’s happening. I.E. Jeopardy when the category is something you have absolutely no clue (nor care) about, isn’t fun to watch.”
Why whole books: *Random verses have their place, but whole sections are much more advantageous to your walk as a believer.

((Twenty years ago was my first quiz season. This is our 16th year (non-consecutive) quizzing.))

THE QUIZ:

In each round of quizzing there are two teams quizzing against one another.

Four quizzers per team at a time, other members are available as substitutes.

There are 20 questions per quiz.

Correct answers are worth 20 points.

There is an allotted 20 seconds per question given in which to answer the question correctly.

If the question is missed (answered incorrectly), there is a bonus question read for the corresponding quizzer on the other team.

Bonus questions are worth 10 points.

A quizzer who answers four questions correctly has Quizzed Out (his/her team receives an extra 10 points) and this person can either be substituted out or may remain seated but is only eligible to answer bonus questions for the remainder of that quiz.

A quizzer who answers incorrectly receives an error. After three errors per team, each subsequent error receives –10 points.

A quizzer who receives three errors has Errored Out and this person is ineligible to answer any more questions (bonus questions included) for the remainder of the quiz.

There are 5 kinds of questions.

There are 3 kinds of answers.

KINDS OF ANSWERS:

1. Correct Answers – the answer must consist of the entire information asked for in the question.
2. Incorrect Answers – if answer using words from a wrong verse (unless began in a correct verse for quote questions).
3. Correct Answers that require a Correct Question given back – (asked for if they have buzzed in before the entire question is stated) Their question given must coincide with the ‘correct’ answer they gave. (See examples, page 6 of booklet.)
